re: Greensboro Arts Alliance & Residency proposal

To whom it may concern:

I'm writing in support of the Greensboro Arts Alliance & Residency and their petition to begin construction on a permanent theater in Greensboro. As chair of Lyndon State College's Music and Performing Arts department I look forward to this important addition to our community. I know it will be a boon to the Vermont State College system as both Lyndon and Johnson are in close proximity to Greensboro, and I know the completion of a permanent theater will bring welcome commerce to the entire area.

Let me tell you a little story. Many years ago a couple of tourists, students at the University of Kansas, "discovered" the beauty and isolation of a little town in southwestern Colorado. They were so taken with the community and its little theater space that they decided to begin a summer repertory theater which would connect the space in Creede to KU's growing theater program. In the beginning, the theater attracted actors and other stage professionals from KU along with their families and friends who visited Creede as a sort of summer get-away experience. But over the years, the Creede Repertory Theater (CRT) developed and began to attract large numbers of tourists to the area. Eventually a board of trustees formed, and an artistic director was hired. Within 10 years, CRT's reach extended well beyond KU as the artistic director began auditioning and hiring actors and interns from New York City, Chicago, and other theater hot-spots in the U.S. Within a relatively short period of time, Creede became a summer destination for people from across the country. Along with the theater, many businesses began to thrive and this middle-of-nowhere, dried-up silver-mining community became an arts oasis brimming with restaurants, B&B's, art galleries, craft shops, tourism businesses and more.

I know that Greensboro can experience that same economic boost through Greensboro Arts Alliance & Residency. With the energy, vision, and connections that Sabra Jones and her son, Charles McAteer, bring to this project I believe that anything is possible. Lyndon has already collaborated with GAAR through our theater instructor, Gianna Fregosi, and a costume exchange began. Lyndon's Provost, Dr. Kellie Bean, established an important connection as she participated in GAAR's writer's workshop series. We also sent a volunteer intern to GAAR who gained valuable experience and made important networking connections in the arts. I anticipate Lyndon's affiliation with GAAR will grow over the next few seasons and I truly look forward to Greensboro becoming an arts hub replete with all sorts of ancillary businesses and experiential opportunities for our students. I would not be a bit surprised if Lyndon's own theater program were to grow by leaps and bounds in the light of Sabra's infinite optimism and vision for GAAR.

I would encourage you to seriously consider the positive impact this project will have on the Greensboro community, and for that matter, on the State of Vermont. Yes, it will be an expensive and complex endeavor; but anything that brings permanent growth and long-lasting benefits is never easy. One person can make a difference in a community. One thought, one idea, one plan can launch a thousand others. I believe that with the right support, Greensboro Arts Alliance & Residency will be that springboard. As Sabra says, "the theater is not only unique in the Vermont, it is unique in the whole us."

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern:

We at Ballet Wolcott are excited to hear about the proposed theater in Greensboro. This is a wonderful opportunity for the community of Greensboro and surrounding towns. Our local arts organizations will have access to space for holding classes and workshops as well as performances. In this part of the world, the most appropriate and best space for a performance is not always possible to find or easy to access. A theater like this will bring the arts to the community while showcasing the talented artists living within them. Our youth will have more opportunities to learn from these artists as well as the artists who visit our area. We genuinely hope that you will approve this theater.

To Our Friends & Neighbors,

The Greensboro Arts Alliance & Residency is undertaking to build an exquisite Elizabethan theater in Greensboro. It will be called "The Mirror," after the following quote from Hamlet:

"...: Let your own discretion be your tutor. Suit the action to the word, the word to the action, with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of nature. For anything so o'erdone is from the purpose of playing, whose end both at the first and now, was and is, to hold as 'twere, the mirror up to nature." - Hamlet, III, II

Rising out of the majestic fields around the current Hazendale Farmstead, the rustic yet elegant structure will reflect a variety of needs for the community as well as the Greensboro Arts Alliance & Residency (including desperately needed performance and rehearsal spaces, administrative offices, and costume/scene shops). The list of people this facility will help directly is large; we offer here just a few of our favorites. The Mirror will:

- Enable the children of Lakeview Union and other area schools (such as the Hazen Union Drama Club) to see professional plays as well as present recitals and theatrical performances in world class facilities
- Give deserving organizations such as Peter Gould's The Funnery a permanent home
- Open powerful new collaborations with inspiring and important organizations such as Heartbeel Lifesharing
- Empower the Greensboro Free Library to expand its programming and educational outreach and offer even more cultural and historical materials to children and adults alike
- Offer individuals and organizations of any financial background— including worthy arts education institutions such as Judevine Music School and Ballet Wolcott— to have extremely affordable professional practice spaces for music,

- theater, or dance
- Provide utilizable spaces for Town Committees and Events
- Allow visionary local artists (such as Rob Merrin) to develop their own work
- Commission artisans of all fields to decorate the building, including handmade seats, sconces, stonework, and more. We are pleased to announce that Vermont artist Adelaide Tyrol has agreed to paint the inside of the building, if approved, with original artworks reflecting the life and beauty of the Northeast Kingdom
- And much, much more

As Food climbs out of the Earth which nourishes it, so does Art spring from the Nature which births it. The Mirror will be, at its heart, no different. It will be a reflection of Greensboro. With edible plantings, agricultural landscaping, masterful craftsmanship and inspiring artistry, we will reflect Greensboro's physical beauty, with respectful, quiet, and environmentally friendly operations, we will reflect Greensboro's character; and with inclusive, generous, and open usage, we will reflect her people.

Please join us tomorrow at 7:00 PM at Fellowship Hall in support of our Development Review Board Hearing. Please feel free to speak, if you wish, as to why GAAR, the Mirror, or art is meaningful to you. We'd appreciate your support.

Many thanks,

GAAR

Hello:

I am interested in seeing if there are any ways that my Hardwick-based music school might be able to interface with your organization. I am interested in finding a fiscal agent for tax-deductible contributions, and also finding out if there might be some potential for summer music workshops in Greensboro. I specialize in Caribbean music.

Thanks very much,

Dear Year-round and Summer Residents of Greensboro,

As the first Board member of the Greensboro Arts Alliance and Residency , I have had the great pleasure of watching the organization grow and develop over the past nine years. I am writing to highlight what I believe to be some of the personal benefits to the year-round and summer residents of Greensboro of having a permanent home for the Greensboro Arts Alliance and Residency in the town.

Since 1945, I have been coming to Greensboro every summer and, since 1991, my husband and I have owned a year-round house. As a young person, I, along with Jim Sowles (Chair of the GAAR Board) and many others, acted in some of the Shakespeare plays directed by Miss Jean Simpson in Craftsbury. It was for me, and for many others, I'm sure, the beginning of a life-long love of theater. It also helped me to develop self-confidence, the ability to work with others, and to meet many people from neighboring towns whom I otherwise would not have met.

The same is true of the Greensboro Arts Alliance and Residency. I enjoy being part of an organization in Greensboro that brings together many year-round and summer residents in a happy and cooperative way as effectively as GAAR does. It unites children, adults, and even dogs (!); Greensboro residents and residents from other towns; amateur and professional actors and actresses, musicians, dancers, costume and lighting designers, stagehands and stage managers from Greensboro, Hardwick, Woodbury, Sharon, other towns in Vermont, and even New York City.

I attended the beginning of eighteen of the twenty performances--and often the entire performance of "Carousel" and "The Miracle Worker"-- this summer and saw the joy and excitement on the faces of the actors and actresses as well as the pride on the faces of the parents, friends, and relatives watching them. Even the ticket takers, beautifully organized by Marsha Gadoury, helped eradicate real, or perceived, barriers between "year-rounders" and "summer people," as the duo often consisted of one person from each group.

Any organization such as GAAR that creates loving bonds between people in the Greensboro community can only be a benefit to everyone!

Sincerely,

Marian Brown Lorenz

To Sabra Jones and the rest of Greensboro Arts Alliance and Residency:

I can see no reason why the proposed theatre to be built on David Allen's land should not be built. This area is desperately in need of a functioning theatre and this building and GAAR will fill that bill.

As a working playwright myself (JUDEVINE and A SONG FOR MY FATHER, to name just two examples) I was fortunate enough to have my newest play, DIFFERENT PLANET, produced as a reading in the GAAR tent this past summer. Such opportunities are essential to the creation of new work for the theatre and an actual theatre is essential to the ongoing existence of theatre in this area.

I think the letters from both Dr. James Sowles and from Andrew C. Brown argue well against the various stated objections to the construction of the theatre.

It is also obvious that GAAR intends that the theatre be of use for the wider community from Summer Music From Greensboro, to The Funnery to Ballet Wolcott.

Sincerely,
David Budbill

Dear Sabra,

Summer Music from Greensboro (SMfG), which has presented music concerts for the greater Greensboro, VT community each summer during the past 35 years, is pleased to submit this letter in support of GAAR's pending application for its construction and operation of a year-round performing arts complex in Greensboro. SMfG is an enthusiastic proponent of both GAAR itself and GAAR's pending application and believes that The Mirror Theater will be a significant cultural asset and vital contributor to the greater Greensboro community. TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This is a letter of enthusiastic encouragement and support for the theater performance and education project that Sabra Jones is undertaking in Greensboro on the site of the Hazendale Farm Stand. I hope that the local community and, indeed, the whole state of Vermont, will give approval to this energetic idea.

I have worked in the greater Greensboro/Craftsbury area since 1998, running the youth Shakespeare enrichment program which I founded. We have served hundreds of young people, and thousands of delighted audience members, some of whom live here, some of whom summer here, and many of whom come for the Home Day weekend and Shakespeare performances. We continue a tradition that is one of the oldest and most revered in the Caspian region: Miss Jean Simpson's Shakespeare for young people, which she founded and robustly directed from the 1920's into the '60's. I believe that the theater that Sabra wants to build--a permanent home for the GAAR--fits as neatly into this tradition as it will fit into our countryside, and I can't wait to be a part of the exciting activities which will take place in the building.

My Funnery camp has been able to survive for seventeen summers because of the generosity of Sterling College, who have provided a space for most of our classes to take place. But, as our campers grow, and as they themselves encourage others to take part, we find that we need more room. We had fifty campers this summer, and not enough space to put them. We look forward eagerly to finding a permanent home for our troupe in the Mirror Theatre, but, more than that, we look forward to experiencing how the Theatre, with all its job opportunities, cultural offerings, and especially its youth services, will impact our region. The Theatre should become a vital part of our future prosperity, with spill-over into other economic activities. It will provide events and ongoing classes for young and old, and it will cement strong contacts between Greensboro and the world beyond.

I am a teacher, college professor, theatre director, and youth leadership mentor. It pleases me more than I can say to recommend this project for approval, and to note, also, how courageous and original an approach to development this project surely is. I grew up, till I was twenty, in some of the richest farming country in southeastern Pennsylvania, and I have noted how much of it has now been developed for shopping, urban sprawl, automobile-centered access, and franchise businesses that take money and uniqueness away from the local region. I applaud every development that seeks a different direction, with benefits of every kind for the neighborhood. The Mirror Theatre is a great idea!

Dear Sabra;

Thanks for meeting with me last week. I know the goals of both the Arts Alliance and the Greensboro Free Library will work well together.

It is the mission of the library to provide resources and programs for lifelong learning, enrichment and access to the world of information. The goal of the Arts Alliance is to provide cultural and economic opportunities to the towns of the Northeast Kingdom and its surrounding areas, primarily through theatrical production and artistic collaboration. The goals of these two organizations fit together nicely. The library can offer background information on plays and writers for the programs you present. Greensboro has a long history of well-known writers and the library maintains an extensive selection of their works. We would be happy to work with you encouraging people as they want to learn more about writing and what has been written by Greensboro authors.

When artists come to share their talents, we would like to provide them and the people who come to see them with the information and background materials they need. Viewing the many artistic performances that will be offered by the Arts Alliance, will raise the curiosity of audiences. The library can help them learn more about what they learn in the musical theater day camp and classes and see in the productions offered.

Our children's program could work with the Arts Alliance and the schools to learn more about the cultural opportunities available outside of the Northeast Kingdom. Greensboro is among Vermont's poorest towns. Median household income is $40,917 with 14.8% of individuals below the poverty line and 58% of elementary school children receiving free or reduced cost lunch. With your world class cultural facility where artists can perform and our commitment to lifelong learning and access to the world of information, the two organizations can provide a richer and more informed world for children and adults of the area.

I hope the library can work closely with you to benefit both organizations as you expand your offerings and work to make Greensboro a center for the arts.

To Whom It may concern:

Thank you for the opportunity to share my thoughts about addition of a new Elizabethan-style theater for our community. I hope this letter provides the information and feedback you are interested in.

I accepted the position of principal of Lakeview School in July, 2013. I continue to be impressed with the strong community spirit demonstrated by Greensboro residents. The support of our school, and the students who attend, continues to be a wonderful feature of this community. As you may know, students attending Lakeview Elementary come from a wide variety of backgrounds, and vary in their exposure to theater and the arts. Our school addresses this disparity by providing art and music classes to all students, a choral program for grades 5-6, and a universal instrumental program for all students in fifth and six grade. We have many students who demonstrate a strong talent and interest in the performing arts, but limited opportunities to explore them. Community programs such as GAAR have stepped in to fill this gap, and provide students from Lakeview and their families new and exciting ways of participating in the performing arts and expanding their skills.

Despite these wonderful efforts, GAAR and other groups have primarily been able to provide opportunities in the summer months, and this makes it difficult for classroom teachers to explore ways of integrating the performing arts into the yearly curriculum. Research consistently shows that theater and music performance opportunities enhance student engagement, increase student learning in writing and reading, and decrease drop-out rates among at-risk populations of students.

The addition of a permanent structure dedicated to theater, funded in large part by the generosity of Andrew C. Brown, would allow Lakeview Union School to develop on-going partnerships with GAAR, participate in theater productions all year long, and increase the students' exposure to theater productions in a more cost effective manner. Currently, we have to hire buses at significant expense to attend theater productions in Burlington.

I can envision many additional opportunities in this partnership- e.g., having 6th graders write a play for general performance, incorporating formal acting lessons into our physical education curriculum, using theater to help younger students increase their understanding of literature pieces, etc. I strongly support this project.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any further questions, or would like more information.

Sincerely,

Eric J. Erwin, Ph.D.

I am so thrilled and delighted to hear of all the forward progress towards making The Mirror spring to life in such a magnificent way.

It will truly be a blessing beyond words for everyone in Greensboro, for Vermont, this country, and the entire world.

When we face a world of so much struggle, strife and dis-ease, to see the opportunity come forth in such a paradise as Greensboro where so much beautiful life abounds, and so many extraordinary souls live helping one another, how courageous you are to give your energies to build a flowering place for art, inspiration and growth on this planet.

The same is true of the Greensboro Arts Alliance and Residency. I enjoy being part of an organization in Greensboro that brings together many year-round and summer residents in a happy and cooperative way as effectively as GAAR does. It unites children, adults, and even dogs (!); Greensboro residents and residents from other towns; amateur and professional actors and actresses, musicians, dancers, costume and lighting designers, stagehands and stage managers from Greensboro, Hardwick, Woodbury, Sharon, other towns in Vermont, and even New York City.

I attended the beginning of eighteen of the twenty performances--and often the entire performance of "Carousel" and "The Miracle Worker"-- this summer and saw the joy and excitement on the faces of the actors and actresses as well as the pride on the faces of the parents, friends, and relatives watching them. Even the ticket takers, beautifully organized by Marsha Gadoury, helped eradicate real, or perceived, barriers between "year-rounders" and "summer people," as the duo often consisted of one person from each group.

Any organization such as GAAR that creates loving bonds between people in the Greensboro community can only be a benefit to everyone!
